Date: Tuesday, July 18, 2023 9:45:26 AM

Ben,

I understood from our July 10 meet and confer that Apple was going to provide its promised supplement to Masimo's Interrogatory Nos. 1 and 3 by yesterday. But we did not receive anything. As you know, Apple promised to provide these supplements several weeks ago, and we still have not received them.

Please provide the promised supplements tomorrow or let us know your availability tomorrow afternoon Pacific Time to meet and confer on this issue.

Sincerely,
Jared

Ben and Carson,

As you know, on Friday, the Judge instructed the parties to confer about a few unresolved items and address them in our letter briefs if we could not reach an agreement. Below is our view of those items. We'd like to confer with you on Monday so that we can address any remaining disputes in our letter brief.

Here's our understanding of the outstanding items, along with our position:

Identification of Apple Watches covered by Apple's asserted claims. As I mentioned at the hearing, it is unclear from Apple's response to Interrogatory No. 4 which products it contends are covered by each of its asserted patent claims. Please tell us if Apple intends to supplement its response to Interrogatory No. 4 to identify on a claim-by-claim basis which Apple Watches it contends are covered. If so, please identify the date Apple will provide that supplement. On a related note, we have asked several times for Apple's promised supplement to Interrogatory Nos. 1 and 3, which Apple represented it would provide two weeks ago. Please identify the date Apple will provide those supplements.

Documents from AliveCor litigation. As requested by the Court, if Apple contends that running keyword searches on Apple's document production in the AliveCor litigation is unduly burdensome, please explain the basis for Apple's contention.

Radar System. We propose that a "custodian" for purposes of Apple's obligation to search its Radar system includes individuals who initiated, were assigned to, edited, or annotated a Radar. Please tell us Apple's position.

Please let us know your availability to confer tomorrow.

Sincerely,
Jared
